

SCHOLARS
STRATEGY NETWORK

Misconceptions Surrounding Homelessness Are Stifling Progress. Here Are The Facts

Mirle Rabinowitz Bussell, University of California, San Diego

Stacey Livingstone, University of California-San Diego

We all know the headlines. Homelessness is one of the biggest issues facing California. Despite new efforts and billions in funding, homelessness continues to soar.

With a problem so far-reaching in our state, you would think we would understand this crisis better. But new research shows that many common views on homelessness are unfounded stereotypes. It's time to discard them and let the research guide us to solutions that can really make a difference.