2 Experts Available for Timely Analysis of Georgia Midterm Elections

OCTOBER 18, 2022

Mandana Mohsenzadegan

With the midterms around the corner, Scholars Strategy Network has compiled a list of local, university-based experts who are available to offer political commentary and analysis on Georgia's election.
DANIEL PAUL FRANKLIN

Georgia State University

Franklin specializes in the institutions of American politics. He teaches courses on the American Presidency, American National Government and Georgia State politics. He also has a research interest and has published on film and politics, and the budget process in Congress.

MARY-KATE LIZOTTE

Augusta University

Lizotte's main area of research is gender differences in public opinion, voting, and party identification. She has also published work on voter evaluations of women political candidates. Her areas of expertise in American politics include vote choice, candidate evaluations, party identification, public opinion, race, ethnicity, and politics, and gender and politics.
