2 Experts Available for Timely Analysis of North Carolina Midterm Elections

OCTOBER 18, 2022

Mandana Mohsenzadegan

With the midterms around the corner, Scholars Strategy Network has compiled a list of local, university-based experts who are available to offer political commentary and analysis on North Carolina's election.

KERRY HAYNIE

Duke University

Haynie's research examines how the theories, structures, and practices of American sub-national political institutions, especially legislatures, affect African Americans' and women's efforts to exert influence on the political system.

REBECCA KREITZER

University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill

Kreitzer's research focuses on gender, political representation, political inequality, and public policy in the US states. She is an expert in state reproductive health policy and biases in standard evaluations of teaching (SETs).
