Communications Associate

The Scholars Strategy Network (SSN) seeks a Communications Associate to help university-based scholars become influential players in public policy debates. As a generalist, the Associate will help inject research and scholarly perspectives into public debates, build relationships with journalists and media outlets, edit and pitch opinion pieces written by academics, produce the No Jargon podcast, and contribute to the organization's overall communications strategy. The Communications Associate is a full-time position with an annual salary between $56,000 to $64,000 commensurate with qualifications and experience with benefits. This is a fully remote position. This position reports to SSN's Director of Communications and is part of the SSN employee union.
